

California's Flood Future Statewide Meetings

On April 3, DWR and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers released the public review draft of California's Flood Future: Recommendations for Managing the State's Flood Risk. The report is intended to help inform decisions about policies and financial investments to improve public safety, foster environmental stewardship and support economic stability.

To ensure agencies throughout the state are familiar with the report findings and recommendations, DWR and USACE is offering nine meetings throughout the state and one webinar where interested stakeholders can hear an overview of the report. Meeting times and dates include:
